WASHINGTON.

WANTS NO RESIGNATIONS

Members Requested to Retain Their Respective Portfolios—Not Known Whether All Will Serve the Full Term—McKinley's Speech at the Buffalo Exposition Outlines the New Administration's Policy.

Washington, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt at 3 p. m. convened his first cabinet meeting held in Washington.
At this meeting the president asked the members of the McKinley cabinet to retain their respective portfolios throughout his term and announced that his administration would follow the policy outlined by President Mc-Kinley in his Buffalo speech.

After the obsequies of the late president, the cabinet, at President Roosevelt's request, assembled at the residence of Commander Cowles, where the president is staying until after the funeral, principally for the purpose of informing their new chief of the state of affairs in their respective departments. The president desired to learn if there was any matter of moment requiring his attention before his departure for Canton. He was assured that there was nothing of pressing importance.

The president then addressed his advisers collectively, as he had previously done individually, requesting them all to retain their respective positions in his cabinet. Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope and expectation that every member would serve throughout his term for, he said, he tendered the appointments as if he had just been elected to the presidency and was forming an original cabinet. The president said, however, there was one difference between the present tender and that of an original offer, namely, under the present circumstances they were not at liberty to decline. Upon being asked by a member if resignations should be formally presented in the usual manner, the president answered that his action at this meeting had precluded the necessity of presenting resignations. The discussion turned upon the policy of the administration, and Mr.
Roosevelt announced that he regarded the speech of the late president at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, the day previous to the tragic shooting, as outlining the policies to be followed by the administration. It cannot be learned at this time whether or not all the members will be willing to serve the full term.

Czolgosz Again Arraigned for the Murder of President McKinley.

Buffalo, Sept. 18.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President Mc-Kinley, was arraigned before Judge Edward K. Emery in the county court at 3 p. m. on the indictment for murder in the first degree in fatally shooting President McKinley in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exposition on Sept. 6. Against the stubborn prisoner refused to plead or even utter a word or sound and the Hon.
Loran L. Lewis, ex-supreme court justice, entered a plea of not guilty.

OBSEQUIES AT THE CAPITOL

ICES AT THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The last chapter of the sad ceremonial, the removal of the remains of the late president to the grave at his old home at Canton, O., began at 8:20 o'clock, when the funeral train left here over the Pennsylvania railroad.

The great bronze doors of the Capitol, in which the body had lain in state, had closed while there were still thousands of people waiting to get a last glance at the casket. The guards at the Capitol, who had patiently throughout the long day held the crowd in leash, were permitted a hurried look at the face of the deceased; the cover of the casket was screwed down by the undertakers; it was lifted once more upon the shoulders of the body bearers and by them borne to the hearse at the foot of the east steps of the Capitol.

Thirty minutes time was required for the removal of the body from the Capitol to the train. The escort on this journey consisted of committees from the army and navy and two squads of the Eleventh cavalry.
The route was down Pennsylvania avenue, which was lined on either side by troops of the District of Columbia. It was a quiet, noiseless journey, without music. Nor was there a sound from the crowd that lined the broad street. Notwithstanding the hour was late, the air chill and a light mist was falling, hats were uniformly removed as the cortege passed.

At the Pennsylvania railroad station there was a dense throng and the remains were received by large delegations of army and naval officers.
There the soldiers and seamen carried the casket from the hearse to the observation car, placed in the second section of the funeral train. The casket was placed on standards

Draped With the National Colors.
It was covered with floral emblems.
No less than 20 cars were required for the transportation of the funeral party to Canton.

It was just before 8 o'clock when
Mrs. McKinley was driven to the station. Fearing the tiring effect of the long walk from the carriage entrance to the car set apart for her. She declined this, however, and walked with surprising firmness to her place, assisted by Abner McKinley and Dr.
Rixey. It was 8:10 o'clock when this section steamed away in the darkness, the first section having preceded it 10 minutes. The observation car, bearing the remains, was flooded with light. Through its crystal sides could be seen the beautifully draped casket with its mass of rare blossoms, so arranged that even as the train swept through the night the people in the country it passed through might gaze on the sight of the casket with a soldier standing grimly at the head, and a sailor, carrying his cutlass upon his shoulder, at the foot. A guard of soldiers and sailors occupied the platforms and between them at the rear was a mammoth wreath six feet in diameter of rare orchids and laurels.

Ten minutes later the third section of the train bearing the army and navy officers sped away and the national capital had performed its part in the funeral ceremonies.

Impressive Ceremonies in the Rotunda of the Capitol.

Washington, Sept. 18.—All that is mortal of William McKinley is speeding toward its last earthly resting place at his beloved home in Canton after the nation had officially and with state ceremony paid its tribute of respect and love to the memory of its stricken chief magistrate. This was almost the closing act in the awful tragedy that has drenched the civilized world in tears. Beneath the great white dome of the Capitol funeral services of state were held over the remains of the dead president. It was eminently fitting that the services should be conducted in that beautiful rotunda hallowed by the history of the last sad rites of two other martyrs to the cause of the republic. As befitting the occasion and the character of the man whose remains were lying cold and rigid in the narrow embrace of the metallic casket, the services were simple. They were conducted in accordance with the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which President McKinley was a life-long member. Consisting only of two hymns, a song, a prayer, an address and a benediction, they were beautiful and solemnly impressive.

Gathered around the bier were representatives of every phase of American national life, including the president and the only surviving ex-president of the United States, together with representatives at this capital of almost every nation of the earth.
Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Spain and all the republics to the southward of the United States mingled their tears with those of the American people.

A Memorable Scene.

Despite the fact that no attempt had been made to decorate the interior of the rotunda, beyond the arrangements made about the cata-falque, the assemblage presented a memorable sight. The somber black of the attire of the hundreds of civilians present was splashed brilliantly with the blue and gold of the representatives of the army and the navy and the court costumes of the diplomatic corps. As the sweet notes of Mr. McKinley's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," floated through the great rotunda, the assemblage rose to its feet. Bared heads were bowed and eyes streamed with tears. At the conclusion of the hymn, as Rev. Dr. Naylor, presiding elder of the Washington district, rose to offer prayer, the hush that fell upon the people was profound. When, in conclusion, he repeated the Lord's prayer, the great audience joined solemnly with him.
The murmur of their voices resembled the roll of far distant surf. Scarcely had the word Amen been breathed when the words of the song "Some Time We'll Understand," went straight to the heart of every auditor.

The venerable bishop, Edwin G.
Andrews of Ohio, the oldest bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, then took his position at the head of the bier. The "peace that passeth all understanding," seemed to rest upon the venerable man's countenance as he began his eulogy of the life and works of William McKinley. His words were simple, but his whole heart was in every one of them. His tribute to the Christian fortitude of the dead president was impressive.
Upon the conclusion of the sermon the audience, as if by prearrangement, joined the choir in singing "Nearer, My God to Thee." All present seemed to be imbued with a sentiment of hallowed resignation as the divine blessing was asked by the Rev. W. H.
Chapman, acting pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, upon both the living and the dead.

Mrs. McKinley did not attend the services at the Capitol. It was deemed wise that she should not undergo the ordeal. She remained at the White House, comforted by every attention that loving thoughtfulness could suggest.

A Last Glance at His Face.

At the conclusion of the funeral services in the rotunda the casket lid was removed in order that the immediate friends of the dead president might be afforded the comfort of a last glance at his features, and that the people whom he loved and who loved him might pass the bier for the same purpose. At 12:30 the crowds began to pass through the rotunda, and during the six hours in which the body was lying in state it is estimated that 55,000 people viewed the remains.

Just at 1 o'clock a frightful calamity was narrowly averted at the east front of the Capitol. For hours the vast throng of people had been massed in front of the Capitol awaiting an opportunity to enter the rotunda. When the doors were opened tens of thousands of people rushed almost frantically to the main stair case. The police and military guards were swept aside and almost in a twinkling there was a tremendous crush at the foot of the great staircase. The immense throng swept backward and forward like the surging of a mighty sea.
Women and children, a few of the latter babes in arms, were caught in the crowd and many were badly hurt.
Strong men held children and even women high above the heads of the surging crowd to protect them from bodily injury.

A Hundred Are Injured.

Despite the efforts of the police and military and the cooler heads in the throng, approximately 100 people were injured. Some of the more seriously hurt were carried into the rotunda and into various adjoining apartments of the Capitol, where first aid treatment was given them. A number were hurried to hospitals in ambulances, but the majority either were taken to or subsequently went unattended to their homes. After the crush had been abated upon the staircase and plaza immediately in front of it were found tattered pieces of men's and women's wearing apparel of all kinds, crushed hats, gloves and even shoes. Watches, pocketbooks, keys and knives were picked up.

When the remains of the dead president were finally closed forever to the view of Washington people the cavalry escort again was formed and conveyed them to the special train, which is now carrying the body to Canton. Three sections, comprising in all 20 passenger coaches, were necessary to accommodate all those who accepted invitations to make the journey to Canton.

EMPLOYERS ARE CONFIDENT

Believe That Trouble Among the Men Is Practically Cured for the Present.

Trouble Predicted in the Tin Plate Plants—Workmen Do Not Relish the Idea of the Mills Becoming Non-Union.

Pittsburg, Sept. 18.—After taking time to think it over, President T. J.
Shaffer of the Amalgamated association has announced that there will be no public statement of the terms of the settlement of the strike of his organization with the United States Steel corporation. He has also decided to issue a circular giving the terms of the agreement on which the men were ordered to return to work and after all the lodges have received it the circular will be made public.
The offices of the Amalgamated association were more quiet and orderly than they have been for some weeks, the large majority of the strikers having returned to work. The men who thus far have refused to do so were meeting their fellow workers and kept away from the organization.

The general condition of the mills of the United States Steel corporation has improved during the past 24 hours in a wonderful manner. It was officially announced that 9 of the 12 blast-furnaces and 3 of the 6 lap-weld furnaces of the National Tube company in McKeesport have started. The officials of the various plants have received applications for work from many more of the strikers and are preparing to make a general start in the morning. The Continental, Elba and Pennsylvania works of the Tube company have started.
The American Tin Plate company reported that all of its active plants except those in Atlantic, Ind., Joliet, Ills., Johnstown, Pa., and Canal Dover have been started.

Placed in Operation.

The last named will start as soon as sufficient tin bars can be secured to supply the needs of the plants. In addition to these four mills of the Star plant and four mills of the Mononga-heia plant are running, as well as eight mills on the Demmler plant and all of the Monessen plant. The Laughlin plant in Martins Ferry, with 23 mills capacity, will be started with 10 mills. The Newcastle and Shen-ango plants with an aggregate capacity of 50 mills, started with full crews.

The manufacturers are confident that the strike among the men is practically cured for the present. A number of men have since their return admitted that they went out against their will and better judgment. The greatest trouble seems to be predicted in the plants of the American Tin Plate company that have been considered by President Shaffer as non-union. The men in those plants take their defeat very hard and many have determined to remain idle or get other employment rather than go back unless their union is recognized.

MRS. BRESCHI ASKED TO LEAVE

Mayor of Cliffside Park, N. J., Fears She May Be Attacked.

New York, Sept. 18.—Mayor Neumann of Cliffside Park, N. J., has notified Mrs. Breschi, the widow of the man who killed King Humbert, that it would be as well if she moved from the borough at an early date. The notification was not a threat but simply an invitation to go.

Mrs. Breschi has been keeping a boarding house, which she started with money supplied by the anarchists, who were associates of her husband before he left this country on his mission to kill Italy's ruler. It is thought Mrs. Breschi will accept the invitation to move, as many of her boarders have gone elsewhere since the shooting of Mr. McKinley. Mayor Neumann asserts that his move was made because he feared the indignation at the death of Mr. McKinley might lead to an attack upon Mrs. Breschi's house.

CORBIN AT VICTORIA.

The Adjutant General Prostrated by News of McKinley's Death.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 18.—On the steamer Empress of India, which arrived during the day from the Orient, was Major General Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., returning home from the Philippines. It was not until the liner was tying up at William Head Quarantine station that General Corbin became aware of the assassination of President McKinley. As the details were conveyed on board by reporters of the Victoria papers the frame of the soldier trembled with emotion and soon the tears were rolling down his cheeks. He said the news had come upon him with such suddenness he was too prostrated to speak.

Lake Vessels Missing.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The schooner
Lake Forest, bound from Manistee, Mich., to Chicago with salt, is missing.
It is feared she might not have found shelter in the recent big gales. Fears are entertained that the schooner Jupiter, loaded with lumber for Cleveland, has gone down with all hands off Saginaw bay.

State Ticket.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—Fusion between the Democratic and Populist parties in Nebraska was effected by their state conventions after sessions held in separate halls, beginning shortly before 3 p. m. and continuing until 2 a. m. As a result of the agreement to fuse the Democrats are given the head of the ticket (supreme court justice), and the two regents of the university go to the Populists. The ticket is: Justice of the supreme court, Conrad Hollenbeck of Dodge county; regents of the university, J.
H. Boyston of Frontier county, and Frederick G. Hawxby of Nemaha county.

Both conventions were well attended. Absolute faith in the leadership of William J. Bryan marked the speeches and resolutions, and the mention of his name was the signal for hearty applause. Hostility was declared to reorganization of the Democratic party on any line of policy different from the present, and the greatest demonstration of the convention came in approval of Chairman Thompson's declaration when he said:
"Who are these men who would reconstruct Democratic principles?
I'll tell you they are men who have been playing the snare drum in Republican ranks and now desire to toot a cornet in the Democratic procession."

Partisanship, in recognition of the tragedy at Buffalo, was tempered in
conventions and feeling reference to the dead president was made by each chairman.

Administration's Policy.

Washington, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt at 3 p. m. convened his first cabinet meeting held in Washington.
At this meeting the president asked
the members of the McKinley cabinet
to retain their respective portfolios
throughout his term and announced
that his administration would follow

all the members will be willing to

Czolgosz Again Arraigned for the Murder of President McKinley.

Buffalo, Sept. 18.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President Mc-Kinley, was arraigned before Judge
Edward K. Emery in the county court
at 3 p. m. on the indictment for murder in the first degree in fatally shooting President McKinley in the Temple
of Music at the Pan-American exposition on Sept. 6. Again the stubborn prisoner refused to plead or even utter a word or sound and the Hon.
Loran L. Lewis, ex-supreme court justice, entered a plea of not guilty.

The accused will be tried in the supreme court next Monday morning.
Crowds flocked to the city hall to see the prisoner, but the uncertainty surrounding the question as to whether or not counsel could be secured for him saved congestion of the courtroom and corridors of the hall.

The most notable incident of the day was the hissing of the prisoner by
the crowds that surged around him as he was being escorted down the stairs still draped in mourning garb.
The strong guard of patrolmen and deputy sheriffs had been dispensed
get nearer the prisoner as he passed to and from the courtroom.

As a result of the urging of President Adelbert Moot of the Erie county bar association, Judge Lewis, one of the attorneys assigned as counsel by Judge Emery, called at the Erie county jail at 2 o'clock to see the prisoner.
Czolgosz refused to talk to Judge Lewis and even refused to answer questions as to whether or not he wanted any counsel. Judge Lewis said that nevertheless he would appear for the prisoner upon arraignment, even if he decided not to accept the assignment of the court.

Like Roosevelt's Declaration.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—The German press devotes considerable attention to President Roosevelt's declaration of policy, expressing satisfaction with his adoption of the utterances of the late President McKinley as to reciprocity. "We hope," says The Lokal Anzeiger, "that he will succeed in placing the economic relations of the United States and Europe upon a

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 18.—A proposition is on foot to organize a new baseball league, under the protection of the American league, that will practically be a revival of the old Western league. The cities now on the list for franchises are Indianapolis, Toledo, Columbus, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

To Deal With Anarchists.

London, Sept. 18.—"I learn," says the Brussels correspondent of The Morning Post, "that an international congress to discuss measures for dealing with anarchists will be arranged before the end of the year."

Will Permit the Use of English.

Boston, Sept. 18.—After a heated debate the United States Brew Masters' convention voted to permit the use of the English language in the proceedings of the association. The constitution will remain in German and all records in that language, but henceforth members who wish to do so may speak in English and all printed matter will be English as well as German.

Orders American Flag Hoisted.

London, Sept. 18.—The admiralty has ordered that the American flag be hoisted at half-mast on the main masts of all war vessels in port and that the Union Jack and the white ensign be half-masted until after the funeral. This is the first occasion when such an order has been issued for the president of a republic.

Queen Reopens States General.

The Hague, Sept. 18.—The states general were opened by Queen Wilhelmina, who, accompanied by the prince consort, performed the ceremony in person. The speech from the throne, after customary reference to friendly foreign relations, dwelt on the necessity for social reform.

More of Kenosha Bribery Scandal.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The alleged bribery of aldermen at Kenosha, Wis., to pass a street railway franchise led to the issuing of a warrant for the arrest of Gustave L. Clausen, former city engineer of Chicago, on the charge of paying the money for the votes.

Ten minutes later the third section
of the train bearing the army and navy officers sped away and the national capital had performed its part
in the funeral ceremonies.

of the Capitol.

Washington, Sept. 18.—All that is
mortal of William McKinley is speed-
place at his beloved home in Canton
state ceremony paid its tribute of
stricken chief magistrate. This was almost the closing act in the awful tragedy that has drenched the civil-
great white dome of the Capitol funeral services of state were held over the remains of the dead presi-
that beautiful rotunda hallowed by
the history of the last sad rites of two other martyrs to the cause of the republic. As befitted the occasion and the character of the man whose remains were lying cold and rigid in

were conducted in accordance with
the rites of the Methodist Episcopal
was a life-long member. Consisting
only of two hymns, a song, a prayer,
an address and a benediction, they
were beautiful and solemnly impressive.

Gathered around the bier were representatives of every phase of American national life, including the president and the only surviving ex-president of the United States, together
with representatives at this capital of
almost every nation of the earth.
Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy
and Spain and all the republics to the
southward of the United States
mingled their tears with those of the American people.

A Memorable Scene.

Despite the fact that no attempt
had been made to decorate the interior of the rotunda, beyond the arrangements made about the cata-falque, the assemblage presented a memorable sight. The somber black
of the attire of the hundreds of civilians present was splashed brilliantly
with the blue and gold of the representatives of the army and the navy
and the court costumes of the diplo-
Mr. McKinley's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," floated through the
great rotunda, the assemblage rose to its feet. Bared heads were bowed and
eyes streamed with tears. At the conclusion of the hymn, as Rev. Dr. Naylor, presiding elder of the Washington
district, rose to offer prayer, the hush
that fell upon the people was profound. When, in conclusion, he repeated the Lord's prayer, the great audience joined solemnly with him.
The murmur of their voices resembled
the roll of far distant surf. Scarcely
had the word Amen been breathed
Time We'll Understand," went

The venerable bishop, Edwin G.
Andrews of Ohio, the oldest bishop
of the Methodist Episcopal church,
then took his position at the head of the bier. The "peace that passeth
all understanding" seemed to rest
works of William McKinley. His words were simple, but his whole
tribute to the Christian fortitude of
the dead president was impressive.
Upon the conclusion of the sermon the
audience, as if by prearrangement,
joined the choir in singing "Nearer,
My God to Thee." All present seemed
to be imbued with a sentiment of
hallowed resignation as the divine
blessing was asked by the Rev. W. H.
Chapman, acting pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church,
upon both the living and the dead.

Mrs. McKinley did not attend the services at the Capitol. It was deemed wise that she should not undergo the ordeal. She remained at the White House, comforted by every
could suggest.

A Last Glance at His Face.

At the conclusion of the funeral services in the rotunda the casket lid was removed in order that the immediate friends of the dead president might be afforded the comfort of a
last glance at his features, and that
loved him might pass the bier for the same purpose. At 12:30 the crowds began to pass through the rotunda,
and during the six hours in which the
body was lying in state it is estimated that 55,000 people viewed the remains.
Just at 1 o'clock a frightful calamity was narrowly averted at the east
front of the Capitol. For hours the
vast throng of people had been massed
in front of the Capitol awaiting an opportunity to enter the rotunda. When
the doors were opened tens of thousands of people rushed almost frantically to the main stair case. The police and military guards were swept aside and almost in a twinkling there
was a tremendous crush at the foot
throng swept backward and forward
like the surging of a mighty sea.
Women and children, a few of the latter babes in arms, were caught in the crowd and many were badly hurt.
women high above the heads of the surging crowd to protect them from
bodily injury.

A Hundred Are Injured.

Despite the efforts of the police and military and the cooler heads in the throng, approximately 100 people were injured. Some of the more seriously hurt were carried into the rotunda
and into various adjoining apartments
of the Capitol, where first aid treatment was given them. A number were hurried to hospitals in ambulances, but the majority either were
taken to or subsequently went unattended to their homes. After the crush
had been abated upon the staircase
and plaza immediately in front of it
shoes. Watches, pocketbooks, keys
and knives were picked up.

When the remains of the dead president were finally closed forever to the view of Washington people the cavalry escort again was formed and
conveyed them to the special train,
which is now carrying the body to Canton. Three sections, comprising
in all 20 passenger coaches, were
necessary to accommodate all those who accepted invitations to make the
journey to Canton.

Pittsburg, Sept. 18.—After taking
time to think it over, President T. J.
Shaffer of the Amalgamated associa-
the settlement of the strike of his organization with the United States Steel corporation. He has also decided to issue a circular giving the terms of the agreement on which the men were ordered to return to work
and after all the lodges have received
it the circular will be made public.
The offices of the Amalgamated association were more quiet and orderly than they have been for some weeks,
the large majority of the strikers having returned to work. The men who
away from the organization.

The general condition of the mills
of the United States Steel corporation
has improved during the past 24 hours
in a wonderful manner. It was officially announced that 9 of the 12
blast-furnaces and 3 of the 6
lap-weld furnaces of the National Tube company in McKeesport have
started. The officials of the various plants have received applications for
work from many more of the strikers
and are preparing to make a general
start in the morning. The Continental, Eiba and Pennsylvania works of the Tube company have started.
The American Tin Plate company reported that all of its active plants ex-
Ills., Johnstown, Pa., and Canal Dover
have been

Placed in Operation.

The last named will start as soon as
sufficient tin bars can be secured to supply the needs of the plants. In addition to these four mills of the Star plant and four mills of the Monongahela plant are running, as well as eight mills on the Demmler plant and
all of the Monessen plant. The Laughlin plant in Martins Ferry, with 23
mills capacity, will be started with 10 mills. The Newcastle and Shen-ango plants with an aggregate ca-
crews.

The manufacturers are confident that the strike among the men is practically cured for the present. A
admitted that they went out against
in the plants of the American Tin Plate company that have been considered by President Shaffer as non-
less their union is recognized.

She May Be Attacked.

New York, Sept. 18.—Mayor Neumann of Cliffside Park, N. J., has notified Mrs. Breschi, the widow of the man who killed King Humbert, that it would be as well if she moved from
the borough at an early date. The notification was not a threat but simply an invitation to go.

Mrs. Breschi has been keeping a boarding house, which she started
with money supplied by the anarchists
sion to kill Italy's ruler. It is thought Mrs. Breschi will accept the invitation to move, as many of her boarders
ing of Mr. McKinley. Mayor Neumann asserts that his move was made
because he feared the indignation at
the death of Mr. McKinley might lead

CORBIN AT VICTORIA.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 18.—On the steamer Empress of India, which arrived during the day from the Orient,
was Major General Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., returning home from the Philippines. It was not until the
Quarantine station that General Corbin was made aware of the assassination of President McKinley. As the details were conveyed on board by
frame of the soldier trembled with
rolling down his cheeks. He said the news had come upon him with such
speak.

Lake Forest, bound from Manistee,
Mich., to Chicago with salt, is missing.
It is feared she might not have found
shelter in the recent big gales. Fears
are entertained that the schooner Jupiter, loaded with lumber for Cleveland, has gone down with all hands
off Saginaw bay.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—Fusion between the Democratic and Populist
parties in Nebraska was effected by
their state conventions after sessions
held in separate halls, beginning shortly before 3 p. m. and continuing until 2 a. m. As a result of the agreement to fuse the Democrats are given
justice), and the two regents of the university go to the Populists. The
ticket is: Justice of the supreme court, Conrad Hollenbeck of Dodge
county; regents of the university, J.
H. Boyston of Frontier county, and Frederick G. Hawxy of Nemaha county.

Both conventions were well attended. Absolute faith in the leadership of William J. Bryan marked the speeches and resolutions, and the
for hearty applause. Hostility was declared to reorganization of the Democratic party on any line of policy
different from the present, and the greatest demonstration of the convention came in approval of Chairman Thompson's declaration when he said:
"Who are these men who would
reconstruct Democratic principles?
I'll tell you they are men who have been playing the snare drum in Republican ranks and now desire to tost a cornet in the Democratic procession."

Partisanship, in recognition of the tragedy at Buffalo, was tempered in
conventions and feeling reference to the dead president was made by each
chairman.

Whether All Will Serve the Full Term—McKinley's Speech at the Buffalo Exposition Outlines the New Administration's Policy.

Washington, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt at 3 p. m. convened his first cabinet meeting held in Washington.
At this meeting the president asked
the members of the McKinley cabinet
to retain their respective portfolios
throughout his term and announced
that his administration would follow
the policy outlined by President Mc-Kinley in his Buffalo speech.

After the obsequies of the late president, the cabinet, at President Roosevelt's request, assembled at the residence of Commander Cowles, where
the president is staying until after the funeral, principally for the purpose of
of affairs in their respective departments. The president desired to learn
requiring his attention before his departure for Canton. He was assured that there was nothing of pressing importance.

The president then addressed his
advisers collectively, as he had pre-
them all to retain their respective
positions in his cabinet. Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope and expectation that every member would serve
had just been elected to the presidency and was forming an original
cabinet. The president said, however,
there was one difference between the
present tender and that of an original
offer, namely, under the present circumstances they were not at liberty to decline. Upon being asked by a member if resignations should be formally presented in the usual manner,
the president answered that his action at this meeting had precluded
the necessity of presenting resignations. The discussion turned upon the policy of the administration, and Mr.
Roosevelt announced that he regarded
the speech of the late president at the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, the
day previous to the tragic shooting,
as outlining the policies to be followed by the administration. It cannot be learned at this time whether or not
all the members will be willing to serve the full term.

Czolgosz Again Arraigned for the Murder of President McKinley.

Buffalo, Sept. 18.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President Mc-Kinley, was arraigned before Judge
Edward K. Emery in the county court
at 3 p. m. on the indictment for murder in the first degree in fatally shooting President McKinley in the Temple
of Music at the Pan-American exposition on Sept. 6. Again the stubborn prisoner refused to plead or even utter a word or sound and the Hon.
Loran L. Lewis, ex-supreme court justice, entered a plea of not guilty.

The accused will be tried in the supreme court next Monday morning.

Crowds flocked to the city hall to
surrounding the question as to
cured for him saved congestion of the courtroom and corridors of the hall.

the crowds that surged around him
as he was being escorted down the stairs still draped in mourning garb.
The strong guard of patrolmen and
deputy sheriffs had been dispensed
get nearer the prisoner as he passed
to and from the courtroom.

As a result of the urging of President Adelbert Moot of the Erie county bar association, Judge Lewis, one of
the attorneys assigned as counsel by Judge Emery, called at the Erie county jail at 2 o'clock to see the prisoner.
Czolgosz refused to talk to Judge
Lewis and even refused to answer questions as to whether or not he wanted any counsel. Judge Lewis
said that nevertheless he would appear for the prisoner upon arraignment, even if he decided not to accept the
assignment of the court.

Like Roosevelt's Declaration.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—The German press
devotes considerable attention to President Roosevelt's declaration of
policy, expressing satisfaction with
his adoption of the utterances of the late President McKinley as to reciprocity. "We hope," says the Lokal Anzeiger, "that he will succeed in
United States and Europe upon a

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 18.—A proposition is on foot to organize a
new baseball league, under the protec-
practically be a revival of the old Western league. The cities now on the list for franchises are Indianapolis, Toledo, Columbus, Grand Rapids,
Kansas City.

To Deal With Anarchists.

London, Sept. 18.—"I learn," says
the Brussels correspondent of The Morning Post, "that an international
congress to discuss measures for dealing with anarchists will be arranged
before the end of the year."

Will Permit the Use of English.

debate the United States Brew-Masters' convention voted to permit
the use of the English language in the proceedings of the association. The constitution will remain in German and all records in that language, but henceforth members who wish to do so may speak in English and all printed matter will be English as well as German.

Orders American Flag Hoisted.

London, Sept. 18.—The admiralty
has ordered that the American flag
be hoisted at half-mast on the main masts of all war vessels in port and
that the Union Jack and the white
ensign be half-masted until after the funeral. This is the first occasion
when such an order has been issued
for the president of a republic.

Queen Reopens States General.

The Hague, Sept. 18.—The states
general were opened by Queen Wilhelmina, who, accompanied by the prince consort, performed the ceremony in person. The speech from the throne, after customary reference to
friendly foreign relations, dwelt on the necessity for social reform.

More of Kenosha Bribery Scandal.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The alleged
bribery of aldermen at Kenosha, Wis., to pass a street railway franchise led
to the issuing of a warrant for the arrest of Gustave L. Clausen, former city engineer of Chicago, on the charge of paying the money for the votes.

ICES AT THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The last
chapter of the sad ceremonial, the removal of the remains of the late president to the grave at his old home at Canton, O., began at 8:20 o'clock,
when the funeral train left here over
the Pennsylvania railroad.

The great bronze doors of the Capitol, in which the body had lain in
still thousands of people waiting to get a last glance at the casket. The
guards at the Capitol, who had patiently throughout the long day held
the crowd in leash, were permitted a hurried look at the face of the deceased; the cover of the casket was screwed down by the undertakers; it
was lifted once more upon the shoulders of the body bearers and by them
borne to the hearse at the foot of the east steps of the Capitol.

Thirty minutes time was required for the removal of the body form the Capitol to the train. The escort on this journey consisted of committees
from the army and navy and two squadrons of the Eleventh cavalry.
The route was down Pennsylvania
avenue, which was lined on either side by troops of the District of Columbia. It was a quiet, noiseless journey, without music. Nor was there a sound from the crowd that
lined the broad street. Notwithstanding the hour was late, the air chill
and a light mist was falling, hats
were uniformly removed as the cortege passed.

At the Pennsylvania railroad station there was a dense throng and the remains were received by large delegations of army and naval officers.
There the soldiers and seamen car-
observation car, placed in the second section of the funeral train. The casket was placed on standards

Draped With the National Colors.

It was covered with floral emblems.
No less than 20 cars were required
for the transportation of the funeral
party to Canton.

It was just before 8 o'clock when
Mrs. McKinley was driven to the station. Fearing the tiring effect of the long walk from the carriage entrance
to the car set apart for her. She declined this, however, and walked with
surprising firmness to her place, assisted by Abner McKinley and Dr.
Rixey. It was 8:10 o'clock when this section steamed away in the darkness,
the first section having preceded it 10 minutes. The observation car, bearing the remains, was flooded with
light. Through its crystal sides could
be seen the beautifully draped casket
with its mass of rare blossoms, so arranged that even as the train swept
through the night the people in the country it passed through might gaze
on the sight of the casket with a soldier standing grimly at the head,
and a sailor, carrying his cutlass upon
his shoulder, at the foot. A guard of soldiers and sailors occupied the platforms and between them at the rear
was a mammoth wreath six feet in diameter of rare orchids and laurels.
Ten minutes later the third section
of the train bearing the army and navy officers sped away and the national capital had performed its part in the funeral ceremonies.

organization with the United States Steel corporation. He has also decided to issue a circular giving the terms of the agreement on which the men were ordered to return to work
and after all the lodges have received
it the circular will be made public.
The offices of the Amalgamated association were more quiet and orderly
than they have been for some weeks,
the large majority of the strikers having returned to work. The men who
meeting their fellow workers and kept
away from the organization.

The general condition of the mills
of the United States Steel corporation
has improved during the past 24 hours
in a wonderful manner. It was officially announced that 9 of the 12
blast-furnaces and 3 of the 6 slag-weld furnaces of the National Tube company in McKeesport have started. The officials of the various plants have received applications for
work from many more of the strikers
and are preparing to make a general start in the morning. The Continental, Elba and Pennsylvania works of the Tube company have started.
The American Tin Plate company reported that all of its active plants except those in Atlantic, Ind., Joliet, Ills., Johnstown, Pa., and Canal Dover
have been

Placed in Operation.

The last named will start as soon as
sufficient tin bars can be secured to supply the needs of the plants. In addition to these four mills of the Star plant and four mills of the Monongahela plant are running, as well as eight mills on the Demmler plant and
all of the Monessen plant. The Laughlin plant in Martins Ferry, with 23
mills capacity, will be started with 10 mills. The Newcastle and Shen-ango plants with an aggregate ca-
crews.

The manufacturers are confident that the strike among the men is practically cured for the present. A number of men have since their return
admitted that they went out against their will and better judgment. The
greatest trouble seems to be predicted
in the plants of the American Tin Plate company that have been considered by President Shaffer as non-
their defeat very hard and many have determined to remain idle or get other
employment rather than go back unless their union is recognized.

MRS. BRESCHI ASKED TO LEAVE

She May Be Attacked.

New York, Sept. 18.—Mayor Neumann of Cliffside Park, N. J., has notified Mrs. Breschi, the widow of the man who killed King Humbert, that it would be as well if she moved from
the borough at an early date. The notification was not a threat but simply an invitation to go.

Mrs. Breschi has been keeping a boarding house, which she started with money supplied by her husband before he left this country on his mission to kill Italy's ruler. It is thought Mrs. Breschi will accept the invitation to move, as many of her boarders
ing of Mr. McKinley. Mayor Neumann asserts that his move was made because he feared the indignation at
the death of Mr. McKinley might lead to an attack upon Mrs. Breschi's house.

CORBIN AT VICTORIA.

The Adjutant General Prostrated by

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 18.—On the steamer Empress of India, which arrived during the day from the Orient,
was Major General Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., returning home from the Philippines. It was not until the
Quarantine station that General Corbin was made aware of the assassination of President McKinley. As the details were conveyed on board by
reporters of the Victoria papers the
frame of the soldier trembled with
rolling down his cheeks. He said the news had come upon him with such suddenness he was too prostrated to speak.

Lake Forest, bound from Manistee,
Mich., to Chicago with salt, is missing.
It is feared she might not have found
shelter in the recent big gales. Fears
are entertained that the schooner Jupiter, loaded with lumber for Cleveland, has gone down with all hands
off Saginaw bay.

Democrats and Populists Divide the

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—Fusion between the Democratic and Populist
parties in Nebraska was effected by
their state conventions after sessions
held in separate halls, beginning shortly before 3 p. m. and continuing until 2 a. m. As a result of the agreement to fuse the Democrats are given
the head of the ticket (supreme court justice), and the two regents of the university go to the Populists. The
ticket is: Justice of the supreme court, Conrad Hollenbeck of Dodge
county; regents of the university, J.
H. Boynton of Frontier county, and Frederick G. Hawxby of Nemaha
county.

Both conventions were well attended. Absolute faith in the leadership of William J. Bryan marked the speeches and resolutions, and the
mention of his name was the signal
for hearty applause. Hostility was declared to reorganization of the Democratic party on any line of policy different from the present, and the greatest demonstration of the convention came in approval of Chairman Thompson's declaration when he said:
"Who are these men who would
reconstruct Democratic principles?
I'll tell you they are men who have been playing the snare drum in Republican ranks and now desire to foot a cornet in the Democratic procession."
Partisanship, in recognition of the tragedy at Buffalo, was tempered in
conventions and feeling reference to the dead president was made by each
chairman.

MORE SERIOUS

CHARGE PREFERRED.

The Hickman Woman is Said to Have Committed Murder In Iowa.

THE GREGORYS SORRY FLIGHT.

They Evidently Got Mixed up in Bad Company and Will Suffer.

Another telegram has been received by the officers in the city from Duluth instructing them to hold Mrs. William Gregory and take the money found on her as stolen property.

It seems that the Gregorys were residents of Duluth, in a district commonly known as Paradise Alley, where all the colored people live. The following account taken from the Duluth Herald of the events in the career of the Gregorys up to the time of their arrest will be of interest:

Plump physical property properly presented in palpably pretty proportion first attracted police attention to Etta Hickman.

She was the most effulgent, sooty soubrette that ever blazed her way down Paradise alley. She used to disport herself down that glistening thoroughfare in very classic costumes. She further dazzled the swift set with a most prosperous looking array of large, fat diamonds. Instead of gloves she wore a quart of diamond rings, and at least two blonde persons fell senseless when they saw her the first time.

They envied her indiscreet and breezy manner, but today they envy her not. Miss Hickman slipped out of Duluth yesterday morning on the North Coast limited. Detectives who had been watching her wired ahead and had her arrested at Moorhead.

Miss Hickman is said to have stolen $3,300 from a man in Sheridan, Iowa. Full particulars of this robbery have not been received here.

With the Hickman now under arrest at Moorhead is her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory, of Paradise alley.

The Hickman person came to Duluth several weeks ago with three $1,000 bills, a $100, a $50 bill and $150 more in bills of smaller denomination. She was accompanied by a Miss Mary Boggs, who, she said, she had engaged as a traveling companion.

The Gregory family startled Paradise alley immediately after Miss Hickman's arrival by taking all their clothing out of pawn. Later William Gregory went to Minneapolis and changed $1,000. When he came home he was wearing bunch lights instead of a shirt front. He only spent $350 in getting the $1,000 changed, and he divided the change between Miss Hickman and Miss Boggs.

Shortly after Gregory was sent to Chicago to change the other two $1,000 bills. He came back with such warm clothes that the fire warden had to warn him not to linger against anything inflammable.

He put up a very weird story about a secret service man shadowing him in Chicago and finally compelling him to give up the money in his possession, or be thrown behind the gratings.

The story was for the purpose of putting Miss Boggs out of the running. The Gregorys desired to succeed her in the interest in the stolen property. Finally the Bogg woman offered to sell out her illegal interest for $100. The Gregorys refused, and yesterday they and Miss Hickman skipped out for Portland Ore. Miss Boggs tipped off their flight to Detective Mork, and he and Detective Troyer and Irvine quickly laid the plans which resulted in their capture last night at Moorhead.

Detective Troyer left for Moorhead this morning for the purpose of bringing the trio back to Duluth. The Gregorys will be prosecuted for receiving stolen property, and the other two will in all probability be turned over to the Iowa authorities.

The Hickman woman has since her arrest had a more serious charge preferred against her. She is charged with murder in the first degree, having killed a man, it is said, at her old home in Iowa. She will be taken to Iowa by the authorities to answer to the charge.

Nels Johnson Thrown from His wagon and Badly Injured By Engine on No. 5.

This afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock the engine on belated No. 5 struck the wagon of Nels Johnson, who lives five miles south of the city, at the Quince street crossing and Mr. Johnson, who was in the wagon was hurled with terrific force to the ground. He struck on his face and it is feared that he will lose one eye and may be otherwise injured. He was at once removed to the N. P. Sanitarium where the wounds were dressed.

The engine struck the rear end of the wagon completely demolishing it. The horses broke away and started to run but were finally caught and taken care of.

It cannot be ascertained definitely how badly Mr. Johnson is hurt.

John Orth Brought Before Judge Mantor This Morning on Complaint of The Health Officers.

This morning John Orth had occasion to appear before Judge Mantor on the charge of violating the quarantine regulations of the state board of health. It seems that there has been some diphtheria in the house and it was quarantined. John stated to the officers that he preferred staying at home, but changed his mind and came down town.

He stated this morning that he did not want to starve to death and that was why he left home. He plead not guilty and demanded a jury trial. He was released on bonds in the sum of $25. The statutes provides, in case the person against whom the complaint made is found guilty, he shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $25. The hearing in the matter was set for Saturday.

The Hickman Woman is Said to Have Committed Murder in Iowa.

THE GREGORYS SORRY PLIGHT.

They Evidently Got Mixed up in Bad Company and Will Suffer.

Another telegram has been received by the officers in the city from Duluth instructing them to hold Mrs. William Gregory and take the money found on her as stolen property.

It seems that the Gregorys were residents of Duluth, in a district commonly known as Paradise Alley, where all the colored people live. The following account taken from the Duluth Herald of the events in the career of the Gregorys up to the time of their arrest will be of interest:

She was the most effulgent, sooty soubrette that ever blazed her way down Paradise alley. She used to disport herself down that glistening thoroughfare in very classic costumes. She further dazzled the swift set with a most prosperous looking array of large, fat diamonds. Instead of gloves she wore a quart of diamond rings, and at least two blonde persons fell senseless when they saw her the first time.

They envied her indiscreet and breezy manner, but today they envy her not. Miss Hickman slipped out of Duluth yesterday morning on the North Coast limited. Detectives who had been watching her wired ahead and had her arrested at Moorhead.

Miss Hickman is said to have stolen $3,300 from a man in Sheridan, Iowa. Full particulars of this robbery have not been received here.

With the Hickman now under arrest at Moorhead is her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory, of Paradise alley.

The Hickman person came to Duluth several weeks ago with three $1,000 bills, a $100, a $50 bill and $150 more in bills of smaller denomination. She was accompanied by a Miss Mary Boggs, who, she said, she had engaged as a traveling companion.

The Gregory family startled Paradise alley immediately after Miss Hickman's arrival by taking all their clothing out of pawn. Later William Gregory went to Minneapolis and changed $1,000. When he came home he was wearing bunch lights instead of a shirt front. He only spent $350 in getting the $1,000 changed, and he divided the change between Miss Hickman and Miss Boggs.

Shortly after Gregory was sent to Chicago to change the other two $1,000 bills. He came back with such warm clothes that the fire warden had to warn him not to linger against anything inflammable.

He put up a very weird story about a secret service man shadowing him in Chicago and finally compelling him to give up the money in his possession, or be thrown behind the grating.

The story was for the purpose of putting Miss Boggs out of the running. The Gregorys desired to succeed her in the interest in the stolen property. Finally the Bogg woman offered to sell out her illegal interest for $100. The Gregorys refused, and yesterday they and Miss Hickman skipped out for Portland Ore. Miss Boggs tipped off their flight to Detective Mork, and he and Detective Troyer and Irvine quickly laid the plans which resulted in their capture last night at Moorhead.

Detective Troyer left for Moorhead this morning for the purpose of bringing the trio back to Duluth. The Gregorys will be prosecuted for receiving stolen property, and the other two will in all probability be turned over to the Iowa authorities.

The Hickman woman has since her arrest had a more serious charge preferred against her. She is charged with murder in the first degree, having killed a man, it is said, at her old home in Iowa. She will be taken to Iowa by the authorities to answer to the charge.

PAY HOMAGE TO LATE PRESIDENT.

Public Memorial Service to Be Held in Gardner Hall To-morrow Afternoon.

Speakers of Prominence Will Eulogize the Late President McKinley.

Tomorrow, when the late President, William McKinley, will be interred and during the hour when the services are to be held over his remains, the entire populace of these United States will bow their heads in reverence, and the event of the funeral of this grand man, will be made one of the most memorable in the history of the country, if not in the whole world, for never was there the demonstration of feeling over the death of any man so great as in the case of the beloved William McKinley.

In Brainerd signals of mourning have been wafted to the breezes and in a quiet, but solemn way, the city will pay homage to the greatest of statesmen, by suspending all business during the hours of the afternoon. All business places in the city will be closed from 1 to 5 o'clock. Both banks of the city will be closed for the entire day, and all public offices of the city will be closed to business also.

There will be a union meeting in Gardner hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and an appropriate program has been arranged. Mayor A. J. Halstead will preside at the meeting.

Some of the best speakers in the city have been secured for the event. Rev. Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, who is perhaps one of the most eloquent speakers in the northern part of the state will speak and others who will address the meeting will be Rev. M. L. Hutton, Rev. Father Lynch and Rev. Roderick J. Mooney. Revs. J. Clulow and S. W. Hoyer will also take part in the services.

Appropriate music will be prepared for the event and the hall will be decorated in an elaborate manner.

Mayor's Proclamation.

Our beloved President is dead. The long and honorable career of William McKinley, patriot, soldier and statesman, has been suddenly cut short in the zenith of his fame, by the murderous bullet of a cowardly assassin. A great and good man—who loved his fellowmen and whose lofty patriotism was an inspiration to his countrymen, the first citizen of the republic and true type of splendid American manhood, is added to the list of martyred Presidents by one of the most atrocious and heinous crimes known in history. The nation mourns. In this dark hour of national affliction our citizens are overwhelmed with grief and sorrow. President Roosevelt in his proclamation has appointed Thursday, Sept. 19th., the day of the late president's funeral, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States, and recommends "all the people to assemble on this day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the Great and Good President whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief."

I would therefore recommend, as a tribute of respect to the memory of our dead president, that business be suspended in all public offices in our city on the day of his funeral; that all places of business close their doors at least during the hours of the funeral, from 1 to 5 p. m., and that the public schools of the city be closed during the afternoon.

I would also suggest that homes and places of business be draped in mourning; that flags be displayed at half-mast or appropriately draped, and that all the bells in the city be tolled for at least fifteen minutes, commencing at 2 p. m., which is the hour set for the funeral services to commence at Canton.

A. J. HALSTEAD,
Mayor.

Governor's Proclamation.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MINNESOTA:
With the profoundest sorrow it becomes my duty to announce the death of William McKinley, the president of the United States. At a moment when happiness and prosperity are universal, the cruel hand of an assassin has struck down the beloved head of our nation, turning happiness to grief, and spreading a pall over the entire land. A most noble and valued life has gone out, carrying the most poignant grief to the heart of every American.

As a youth William McKinley shouldered his musket and with marked bravery and patriotism fought the battles of his country. As a member of the national congress he evinced the highest integrity, patriotism and statesmanship. As governor of his state he honored and adorned that great office by his pure life and rare wisdom. As president of our country, though confronted by problems involving the greatest consequence to our people, his guiding wisdom brought us safely through the storms and added new lustre and glory to the flag we love.

A devoted husband of pure and spotless character, a courageous and patriotic soldier, a statesman who knew no duty but the welfare of his country, a public servant whose unsurpassed wisdom exalted and glorified America, but faintly describes the life of our noble dead.

While we bow our heads submissively to the decree of the God of all Nations, let us see to it that our love and devotion for our dead president and the grief we feel at his untimely taking off, find expression in appropriate service and in the draping of our homes and places of business.

BISHOP CRANSTON.

Who Will Preside at the Northern Minnesota Conference in This City Is Widely Known.

Bishop Cranston, who will preside at the coming conference, is one of the most widely known bishops of the M. E. church, because of his long connection with the Western Book Concern before his election to the Episcopacy. Bishop Cranston is now located at Portland, Oregon, and will preside at various conferences in this section before coming here. His lecture on "The Cross and the Dragon" to be given in Gardner Hall one evening during the session will be something which no one should fail to hear. The small charge of 25 cents for admission is within the reach of all, and the entire proceeds will be devoted to the expenses of entertaining the conference representative men from all over the United States who will be in attendance at the meeting and will deliver addresses in the evenings at Gardner Hall. One man from India will be here on Sunday evening to represent the W. F. M. society.

The week will without question be a busy one in church circles and the gathering will be one of some importance to the city. Rev. J. SOMETHING BESIDES WERIED WILDERNESS

W. D. Washburn Jr. Very Much Pleased With His Northern Trip.

Room for Millions of Settlers in the Counties He Visited Recently.

W. D. Washburn, Jr., has just returned to his home in Minneapolis after traveling through some of the counties of the northern part of the state, including Crow Wing, Cass, Aitkin and Itasca. Mr. Washburn was very much surprised with the fertility of the soil in these counties and contrary to the usual impression that has gone abroad that these counties abound with dense wilderness, big game and lumber jacks, he found the country well adapted in many respects for agricultural purposes and capable of maintaining two or three million inhabitants.

Regarding his trip Mr. Washburn said:

"The magnitude and wealth of the northern counties of Minnesota is not understood by the people of the state. While it is commonly thought that Brainerd is in the northern part of Minnesota, it is almost in the center. There is a large area of good land north of that city, and it is upon the development of it that the future growth of the Twin Cities depends in large measure.

Leaving Staples I traveled over 400 miles northward by team, and with the exception of a few townships I found no bad lands—none, in fact, in the northern part of the state, outside of St. Louis county, so poor as the counties of Sherburne, Anoka and other prosperous counties in the neighborhood of Minneapolis.

It will be a matter of surprise, no doubt, but the principal product of this section is corn—Iowa corn, 12 feet in height—just ripening, was what I found on Sept. 1. The meadow lands run from two to three tons to the acre this season, and hay stacked in the meadows was selling at from $5 to $6 per ton. Many settlers who bought land at $5 or $6 per acre had hay standing upon it which would bring them $10 to $12 per acre.

Crow Wing county, which was formerly a part of Cass county and immediately adjoins it to the east, is of the same character, but is slightly more rolling than Cass county. It is interspersed with fine lakes and streams, and is being settled rapidly by people from Pine River and Brainerd.

In the town of Emily, some twenty-five miles from the station, is a large and prosperous colony with fine schools and churches. The roads are also well made and servicable. The country improves rapidly as one goes further north, many townships being covered with a fine growth of oak, maple, basswood and various coniferous timbers. This particular county is not excelled by Meeker or Wright counties, and while it is at present inaccessible by railroad, it is destined to become one of the richest agricultural sections of the state. In this connection, I might call attention to a fine logging road connecting Cross Lake with Wabina lake. It is expected that this line will shortly be connected with the main line of the Brainerd & Northern, in which case that magnificent section will be at once opened to settlement.

The boys with the Dakota threshers report that there is too much rainy weather.

G. W. Hunt has purchased a four-horse power engine for irrigation purposes, and may use it to grind feed winters.

Though it is several days since the fair closed, G. A. Hunt may be heard saying to himself, "Yes, they were all grown in Crow Wing county."

While Mrs. Ruttger and children were out driving the team became unmanageable and ran away, colliding with two other teams, and though the vehicles were wrecked, not a person was hurt.

Locals are scarce, a deep, dark gloom has settled over our land, and we feel like bowing our head in meditation. "It is God's way. This morning at 10 o'clock at the M. E. parsonage occurred the marriage of J. F. Smart, of Long Lake, and Myrtle E. Gates, of Daggett, in the presence of a few of the immediate relatives. The bride is a daughter of B. H. Gates, favorably known here. They have resided in Crow Wing county but a short time, having removed from Olivia two years ago, but during her short residence Miss Gates has made many warm friends in her community by her gentle winning ways.

The groom is a young man of many sterling qualities. He has enjoyed the privilege of a liberal education, having completed a course at the St. Cloud normal, with two years of study at the Minnesota "U." For several years he was employed as time-keeper for a firm of loggers at Park Rapids, but at present is associated with his brother on a stock farm in Long Lake town, where the young couple will reside.

STANDS THE ORDEAL WELL.

Mrs. McKinley's Friends Fear a Collapse When All Is Over.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Mrs. McKinley has stood the strain of the trying ordeal following the death of the president without breaking down, and her physician, Dr. Rixey, is encouraged to believe that she will go through the state ceremonial without collapse. She spent a half hour beside the coffin on the train during the morning. This was followed by a period of depression, but Dr. Rixey induced her to sleep during the afternoon. Now that she has gone through with the trials and fatigues so far those nearest to her feel there is little serious danger of immediate collapse. Their dread is for the future, when the nerve tension of the present ordeal is over and when the widow is back alone in the old house at Canton, with the flood of reflection and realization that must come upon her.

Bocas del Torro Attacked.

Public Memorial Service to Be Held in Gardner Hall To-morrow Afternoon.

Speakers of Prominence Will Eulogize the Late President McKinley.

Tomorrow, when the late President, William McKinley, will be interred and during the hour when the services are to be held over his remains, the entire populace of these United States will bow their heads in reverence, and the event of the funeral of this grand man, will be made one of the most memorable in the history of the country, if not in the whole world, for never was there the demonstration of feeling over the death of any man so great as in the case of the beloved William McKinley.

In Brainerd signals of mourning have been wafted to the breezes and in a quiet, but solemn way, the city will pay homage to the greatest of statesmen, by suspending all business during the hours of the afternoon. All business places in the city will be closed from 1 to 5 o'clock. Both banks of the city will be closed for the entire day, and all public offices of the city will be closed to business also.

There will be a union meeting in Gardner hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and an appropriate program has been arranged. Mayor A. J. Halstead will preside at the meeting.

Some of the best speakers in the city have been secured for the event. Rev. Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, who is perhaps one of the most eloquent speakers in the northern part of the state will speak and others who will address the meeting will be Rev. M. L. Hutton, Rev. Father Lynch and Rev. Roderick J. Mooney. Revs. J. Clulow and S. W. Hoyer will also take part in the services.

Appropriate music will be prepared for the event and the hall will be decorated in an elaborate manner.

Mayor's Proclamation.

Our beloved President is dead. The long and honorable career of William McKinley, patriot, soldier and statesman, has been suddenly cut short in the zenith of his fame, by the murderous bullet of a cowardly assassin. A great and good man—who loved his fellowmen and whose lofty patriotism was an inspiration to his countrymen, the first citizen of the republic and true type of splendid American manhood, is added to the list of martyred Presidents by one of the most atrocious and heinous crimes known in history.

The nation mourns. In this dark hour of national affliction our citizens are overwhelmed with grief and sorrow. President Roosevelt in his proclamation has appointed Thursday, Sept. 19th., the day of the late president's funeral, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States, and recommends "all the people to assemble on this day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the Great and Good President whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief."

I would therefore recommend, as a tribute of respect to the memory of our dead president, that business be suspended in all public offices in our city on the day of his funeral; that all places of business close their doors at least during the hours of the funeral, from 1 to 5 p. m., and that the public schools of the city be closed during the afternoon.

I would also suggest that homes and places of business be draped in mourning; that flags be displayed at half-mast or appropriately draped, and that all the bells in the city be tolled for at least fifteen minutes, commencing at 2 p. m., which is the hour set for the funeral services to commence at Canton.

A. J. HALSTEAD,
Mayor.

Governor's Proclamation.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MINNESOTA:

With the profoundest sorrow it becomes my duty to announce the death of William McKinley, the president of the United States. At a moment when happiness and prosperity are universal, the cruel hand of an assassin has struck down the beloved head of our nation, turning happiness to grief, and spreading a pall over the entire land. A most noble and valued life has gone out, carrying the most poignant grief to the heart of every American.

As a youth William McKinley shouldered his musket and with marked bravery and patriotism fought the battles of his country. As a member of the national congress he evinced the highest integrity, patriotism and statesmanship. As governor of his state he honored and adorned that great office by his pure life and rare wisdom. As president of our country, though confronted by problems involving the greatest consequence to our people, his guiding wisdom brought us safely through the storms and added new lustre and glory to the flag we love.

A devoted husband of pure and spotless character, a courageous and patriotic soldier, a statesman who knew no duty but the welfare of his country, a public servant whose unsurpassed wisdom exalted and glorified America, but faintly describes the life of our noble dead.

While we bow our heads submissively to the decree of the God of all Nations, let us see to it that our love and devotion for our dead president and the grief we feel at his untimely taking off, find expression in appropriate service and in the draping of our homes and places of business.

Mayor's Proclamation.

Our beloved President is dead. The long and honorable career of William McKinley, patriot, soldier and statesman, has been suddenly cut short in the zenith of his fame, by the murderous bullet of a cowardly assassin. A great and good man—who loved his fellowmen and whose lofty patriotism was an inspiration to his countrymen, the first citizen of the republic and true type of splendid American manhood, is added to the list of martyred Presidents by one of the most atrocious and heinous crimes known in history.

The nation mourns. In this dark hour of national affliction our citizens are overwhelmed with grief and sorrow. President Roosevelt in his proclamation has appointed Thursday, Sept. 19th., the day of the late president's funeral, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States, and recommends "all the people to assemble on this day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the Great and Good President whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief."

I would therefore recommend, as a tribute of respect to the memory of our dead president, that business be suspended in all public offices in our city on the day of his funeral; that all places of business close their doors at least during the hours of the funeral, from 1 to 5 p. m., and that the public schools of the city be closed during the afternoon.

I would also suggest that homes and places of business be draped in mourning; that flags be displayed at half-mast or appropriately draped, and that all the bells in the city be tolled for at least fifteen minutes, commencing at 2 p. m., which is the hour set for the funeral services to commence at Canton.

A. J. HALSTEAD,
Mayor.

Governor's Proclamation.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MINNESOTA:

With the profoundest sorrow it becomes my duty to announce the death of William McKinley, the president of the United States. At a moment when happiness and prosperity are universal, the cruel hand of an assassin has struck down the beloved head of our nation, turning happiness to grief, and spreading a pall over the entire land. A most noble and valued life has gone out, carrying the most poignant grief to the heart of every American.

As a youth William McKinley shouldered his musket and with marked bravery and patriotism fought the battles of his country. As a member of the national congress he evinced the highest integrity, patriotism and statesmanship. As governor of his state he honored and adorned that great office by his pure life and rare wisdom. As president of our country, though confronted by problems involving the greatest consequence to our people, his guiding wisdom brought us safely through the storms and added new lustre and glory to the flag we love.

A devoted husband of pure and spotless character, a courageous and patriotic soldier, a statesman who knew no duty but the welfare of his country, a public servant whose unsurpassed wisdom exalted and glorified America, but faintly describes the life of our noble dead.

While we bow our heads submissively to the decree of the God of all Nations, let us see to it that our love and devotion for our dead president and the grief we feel at his untimely taking off, find expression in appropriate service and in the draping of our homes and places of business.

GIVEN UNDER my hand and the Great Seal of the State this Fourteenth Day of September, A. D., 1901.

S. R. VASANT.
Attest: P. E. HANSON,
Secretary of State.

Who Will Preside at the Northern Minnesota Conference in This City Is Widely Known.

Bishop Cranston, who will preside at the coming conference, is one of the most widely known bishops of the M. E. church, because of his long connection with the Western Book Concern before his election to the Episcopacy. Bishop Cranston is now located at Portland, Oregon, and will preside at various conferences in this section before coming here. His lecture on "The Cross and the Dragon" to be given in Gardner Hall one evening during the session will be something which no one should fail to hear. The small charge of 25 cents for admission is within the reach of all, and the entire proceeds will be devoted to the expenses of entertaining the conference representative men from all over the United States who will be in attendance at the meeting and will deliver addresses in the evenings at Gardner Hall. One man from India will be here on Sunday evening to represent the W. F. M. society.

The week will without question be a busy one in church circles and the gathering will be one of some importance to the city. Rev. J. Clulow, who has canvassed every part of the city, has met with the most cordial response, but still needs about ten or twelve homes. Will not some who may not have yet been seen report at once, either personally or by phone.

THE SPECIAL PREMIUMS.

Secretary Wilson, of the Crow Wing County Agricultural Society has figured out the report of the judges and the winners of the special premiums offered by merchants in the city.

The following took special premiums:

Best jar of butter, Mrs. George McCullough, clothes wringer by Slipp Bros.

For best lamb, William H. Hallett, pair of shoes by R. F. Walters. Best bushel of potatoes, S. J. Greer, lamp, by D. M. Clark.

Best pig under six months, George McCullough, 2 pounds best coffee by William Murray.

Best display of honey, John Atkinson, 25-pound sack of corn meal by John Larson.

Best bushel of onions, William Andrews, an eight day clock by E. S. Houghton.

Best display of grapes, N. Newgaard, 50-pound sack of flour by M. J. Reilly.

Best display of fruit, N. Newgaard, 50-pound sack of flour by P. M. Lagerquist.

In 1884 it was supposed that fruit could not be grown so far north as Crow Wing county in Minnesota. In 1887 G. A. Hunt exhibited at the county fair a 10x12 box of plums. At the fair last week there were eight exhibitors of plums, two of grapes and seven of apples. Seven varieties of grapes, twenty-five of apples and eight of plums were displayed. Altogether the fruit display was the most interesting of any exhibit at the fair. All but two of the exhibitors were from Bay Lake this county.

Rev. A. H. Carver: On account of the meeting tomorrow afternoon the regular Thursday evening service at the Presbyterian church will not be held tomorrow night.

J. B. Jones: Potatoes are valuable this year. I have cleared enough off of seven acres of land this year to pay for a quarter section that I bought last spring. Have sold over three carloads.

SOMETHING BESIDES WERIED WILDERNESS

W. D. Washburn Jr. Very Much Pleased With His Northern Trip.

UNDEVELOPED FERTILE REGION. Room for Millions of Settlers in the Counties He Visited Recently.

W. D. Washburn, Jr., has just returned to his home in Minneapolis after traveling through some of the counties of the northern part of the state, including Crow Wing, Cass, Aitkin and Itasca. Mr. Washburn was very much surprised with the fertility of the soil in these counties and contrary to the usual impression that has gone abroad that these counties abound with dense wilderness, big game and lumber jacks, he found the country well adapted in many respects for agricultural purposes and capable of maintaining two or three million inhabitants.

Regarding his trip Mr. Washburn said: "The magnitude and wealth of the northern counties of Minnesota is not understood by the people of the state. While it is commonly thought that Brainerd is in the northern part of Minnesota, it is almost in the center. There is a large area of good land north of that city, and it is upon the development of it that the future growth of the Twin Cities depends in large measure.

Leaving Staples I traveled over 400 miles northward by team, and with the exception of a few townships I found no bad lands—none, in fact, in the northern part of the state, outside of St. Louis county, so poor as the counties of Sherburne, Anoka and other prosperous counties in the neighborhood of Minneapolis.

It will be a matter of surprise, no doubt, but the principal product of this section is corn—Iowa corn, 12 feet in height—just ripening, was what I found on Sept. 1. The meadow lands run from two to three tons to the acre this season, and hay stacked in the meadows was selling at from $5 to $6 per ton. Many settlers who bought land at $5 or $6 per acre had hay standing upon it which would bring them $10 to $12 per acre.

Crow Wing county, which was formerly a part of Cass county and immediately adjoins it to the east, is of the same character, but is slightly more rolling than Cass county. It is interspersed with fine lakes and streams, and is being settled rapidly by people from Pine River and Brainerd.

In the town of Emily, some twenty-five miles from the station, is a large and prosperous colony with fine schools and churches. The roads are also well made and servicable. The country improves rapidly as one goes further north, many townships being covered with a fine growth of oak, maple, basswood and various coniferous timbers. This particular county is not excelled by Meeker or Wright counties, and while it is at present inaccessible by railroad, it is destined to become one of the richest agricultural sections of the state. In this connection, I might call attention to a fine logging road connecting Cross Lake with Wauabina lake. It is expected that this line will shortly be connected with the main line of the Brainerd & Northern, in which case that magnificent section will be at once opened to settlement.

This morning at 10 o'clock at the M. E. parsonage occurred the marriage of J. F. Smart, of Long Lake, and Myrtle E. Gates, of Daggett, in the presence of a few of the immediate relatives. The bride is a daughter of B. H. Gates, favorably known here. They have resided in Crow Wing county but a short time, having removed from Olivia two years ago, but during her short residence Miss Gates has made many warm friends in her community by her gentle winning ways.

The groom is a young man of many sterling qualities. He has enjoyed the privilege of a liberal education, having completed a course at the St. Cloud normal, with two years of study at the Minnesota "U." For several years he was employed as time-keeper for a firm of loggers at Park Rapids, but at present is associated with his brother on a stock farm in Long Lake town, where the young couple will reside.

Mrs. McKinley's Friends Fear a Collapse When All is Over.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Mrs. McKinley has stood the strain of the trying ordeal following the death of the president without breaking down, and her physician, Dr. Rixey, is encouraged to believe that she will go through the state ceremonial without collapse. She spent a half hour beside the coffin on the train during the morning. This was followed by a period of depression, but Dr. Rixey induced her to sleep during the afternoon. Now that she has gone through with the trials and fatigues so far those nearest to her feel there is little serious danger of immediate collapse. Their dread is for the future, when the nerve tension of the present ordeal is over and when the widow is back alone in the old house at Canton, with the flood of reflection and realization that must come upon her.

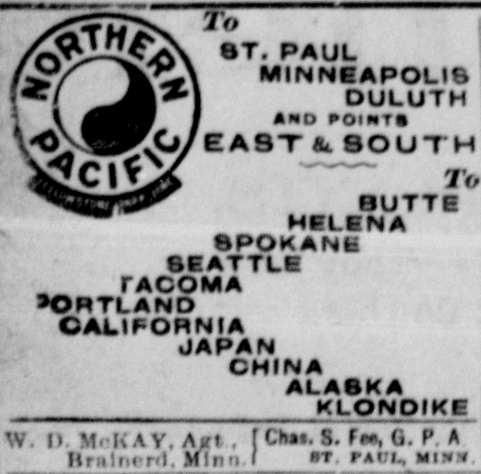

Bocas del Torro Attacked. Mobile, Ala., Sept. 18.—Captain Halversen of the Norwegian steamship Harald, from Bocas del Torro, Colombia, reports that on last Wednesday the town was attacked by the besieging force (insurgents) who were repulsed after an all-day fight.

STORIES OF M'KINLEY.

Memories of the President's Boyhood Days.

INCIDENTS TOLD BY HIS MOTHER.

Some of the most interesting reminiscences of his earlier days, by his beloved mother a few years before her death, and from those it would appear that the future president was a lively and affectionate youngster of the "mildling good" description.

"Mother" McKinley said that William was a great hand for marbles, and he was very fond of his bow and arrow. He got so that he was a very good shot with an arrow. The thing he loved best of all was a kite. "It seems to me," said Mrs. McKinley, "I never went into the kitchen without seeing a paste pot or a ball of string waiting to be made into a kite. He never cared much for pets. I don't believe he ever had one. We didn't own a horse, so he never rode or drove. He was always teasing to go barefooted the minute the snow was off the ground. When summer came, he always had a stone bruise or a stubbed toe, and he was as proud as a king to show all the other boys how he stubbed or bruised his foot. Although William had no taste for fishing and rarely if ever attempted the sport, he was very fond of swimming."

In pursuance of her plan of making her boys useful, Mrs. McKinley required them to divide the labors of the house. They burned wood and lots of it, and it had to be sawed and split. It came in lengths four feet long, and William and Abner, being of about the same age, had to prepare it for use. Mrs. McKinley remembers that William was a steady chopper, muscular and willing, but Abner usually had the bigger pile to his credit. However, Abner got other boys to help him, while he directed their work. William, on the contrary, always saved his own wood. The boys had the garden to hoe, chickens to feed and errands to run.

"Young McKinley's admission to the church made such a vivid impression on my mind that I will never forget it. He had been a frequent attendant at the Sunday services and was an earnest listener. On the evening McKinley 'got up' I had been exhorting all my hearers to repent deeply of their sins and seek salvation of their souls.

"After the preaching we had a prayer meeting, and young McKinley arose in his seat. He was about fourteen years old at the time, and a more dramatic figure of an earnest boy I never saw. Standing erect, with bowed head, but looking every one full in the face, he said: 'I am determined to be a Christian. I believe that God is the greatest and best being of the universe, and I am determined to love and serve him. I believe religion is the best thing in all the world, and I am going to seek it with all my heart until I find it.'

"There was nothing affected in the boy's manner, but his quiet, earnest way attracted the attention of everybody in the church. The boy at that time was a student at the Poland institute, and the stand he took for religion had a great amount of influence with the younger people."

James P. Gardner of Ellerslie, Alleghany county, Md., claims that he was instrumental in securing for President McKinley his first law case. A poor woman of Canton had fallen in a sewer, carelessly left open by city officials, and sustained severe injuries. She was disabled for work and probably too ignorant or too poor to bring suit.

Mr. Gardner, then a resident of Canton, interested himself in the poor woman's behalf and carried the case to Major McKinley, who had just hung out his shingle. The latter worked it up and brought suit against the city. He won, and as a consequence the woman was able to provide herself with a comfortable home and a "rainy day" fund. The only reward Major McKinley got for his services, says Mr. Gardner, was the pleasure which a good man derives from the performance of a good deed.

Young McKinley was once defending a medical client sued for alleged malpractice in setting a broken leg. It was suspected, without means of proof being provided, that the claim was what in the legal slang of corporation damage suits is called "a fake snap." The plaintiff's counsel had ocularily exposed the malpracticed leg to the jury and ocularily showed the nodes which were the alleged palpable evidences of the want of medical skill when McKinley exclaimed as the plaintiff was restoring the clothing of the limb, "Now let us see your other leg," which, after very excusable objections as to policy from his attorney, was exhibited.

The new exhibit, which proved to have been duly marked with India ink, showed the same nodes that were upon the other leg and proved that, as McKinley wittily remarked, it was Dame Nature who had been guilty of malpractice.

Mr. McKinley before his election to the presidency used to receive scores of requests to make speeches, and many of these were accompanied with offers of money. One day he received a letter from Boston stating that the writer would give him $500 if he would deliver a speech there.

"I do not know why it is," said the then governor of Ohio, "but there is a sort of repugnance in my mind against giving my views on public questions for pay. I may be all wrong about it, but I know it would take all the enthusiasm out of me if I knew that I was going to be paid at the end of a meeting for the remarks I made during it. I have had money offered me very often, but I have never taken it."

"I remember a speech which I made not long ago in debate at one of the big eastern universities on the tariff question. I took the protection side, of course, and a very prominent free trader had the other side. Shortly after I arrived in the city the president of the institution called upon me at my hotel. During the visit he took four one hundred dollar bills out of his pocket and laid them down on the table.

"What is that for?" said I.

"That is for your speech tonight," was the reply.

"But I don't want any money for the speech," I answered. "I did not come here to talk for money, and I cannot take it."

"We would rather have you take it than not," said the president. "We have paid that much to your opponent, and I see no reason why you should not be paid as well as he."

"Well," pursued the governor, "the president continued to insist, and at last I told him that if he was determined upon it he could pay my expenses. It would cost me $50 to fill the engagement, and that was all that I could accept. I asked them to send the money to my home, for, do you know, I do not believe I could have done my best with that money in my pocket."

The last thing Mr. Kinley did on the Pan-American grounds before he was shot was a little act of kindness, says the New York World. Fred Kloonhammer, a programme boy, met the presidential carriage drawn up for a moment for the view of the court of fountains.

"Here's a programme for you, Mr. President," said the boy, eluding the police escort, and, stepping close to the carriage, he handed Mr. McKinley three. The president took them, smiled, reached into his pocket and handed the boy a dollar. The youngster put his hand behind him and took a backward step.

"No, sir; that's a present," he said bravely.

The president smiled again, returned the coin to his pocket, nodded thanks and was whisked away, while the lad stood in the middle of the roadway and watched the carriage until it was out of sight.

Physicians and others who have been in attendance on President McKinley are beginning to repeat incidents and scraps of conversation which throw interesting side lights on the personality of the nation's executive. One of the most touching stories was repeated the other day by a physician who assisted at the first operation in the Pan-American Emergency hospital, says a Buffalo correspondent of the New York Press. The doctor said:

"When we had administered the ether to President McKinley as a preliminary to the first operation and just as he was sinking into unconsciousness, we saw his lips move. Bending over the prostrate form, that we might catch what, alas, might prove to be his last words, we heard, faintly, but distinctly, a part of the Lord's Prayer. 'Thy kingdom come, thy will be done,' were the last words of President McKinley as he passed into that vale from which, as none knew better than he, he might never emerge."

Whenever he could the president has cracked a joke in his sickroom. The other morning Miss Mohr, one of the nurses, counted the president's pulse. First gazing at the watch in her hand and then looking up at her quizzically, the president said:

Kisses For Punctual Pupils.
Miss Julia Wilson, a schoolteacher in White county, has introduced a new method by which to prevent tardiness among her pupils, says a dispatch from Dublin, Ind., to the Chicago Record-Herald. She announced before the school that she would kiss the first arrival every morning. Miss Wilson is a handsome lass of 18 summers, and the boys declare she is "sweet as a peach." The first morning after her announcement as early as 5 o'clock a number of the eldest schoolboys were roosting on the fence awaiting their pretty schoolteacher's arrival. At 8 o'clock the entire school was there. The township trustees also put in an appearance. Miss Wilson kept her promise.

Fall's Approach.
The leaves are turning into gold; They always do the same; It is a little way they have, A sort of green goods game. The hazy twilight brings a moon That takes up half the sky And makes a hungry fellow think Of future pumpkin pie. The elder press gets busy now; It does not stop nor lag, And country folks again debate, "Does Elder Cause a Jag?" The price of coal goes up a notch; The price of ice comes down; The folks who spend their coin abroad Are hustling now in town. And, oh, the rah-rah boy permits His hair to grow quite long And bursts the air with college yells Or tunes his college song. The theaters are open, and New ragtime songs we shall; These creations make it very plain; We know that it is fall. —Baltimore American.

MOURNING UNIVERSAL.

Cubans Feel the Assassination of President McKinley Deeply.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 18.—Governor General Wood arrived here during the afternoon from Havana en route to Washington. General Wood said that he had never seen such universal mourning as was shown in Cuba for the death of Mr. McKinley and that its extent and manifest sincerity, demonstrating how deeply the Cubans felt, was surprising. General Wood stated that important business with the secretary of war brought him to the states and that he would probably return to Havana in about a week.

BURGLARS GET CASH.

Five Thousand in Currency and Bonds Are Taken.

Hudson, Wis., Sept. 18.—The Bank of Hammond was broken into during the night and looted by burglars. Several thousand dollars in currency and securities, including city of River Falls bonds, were taken. The bank officials refuse to give out any particulars at this time. It is estimated that the cash taken amounts to $5,000 and that the bonds are to an equal amount.

In Memory of President McKinley.

London, Sept. 18.—The ecumenical Methodist conference closed its sessions with a memorial service in honor of the late President McKinley. The platform was draped in black and white and British and American flags were entwined about the pulpit. The organ played a dead march, impressive addresses were made and "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. Ambassador Choate was among those present.

Found Their Children Burned.

Spooner, Wis., Sept. 18.—Word comes from Orange postoffice, 30 miles northeast, that Robert Beasle and his wife returned Sunday night and found their home burned, with the bodies of their three children, a girl of 16, and two boys of 11 and 4. There is a suspicion of criminal assault and burned bodies to cover the crime.

Anarchist Threatens a Preacher.

Piqua, O., Sept. 18.—Rev. Frederick Knapp, pastor of St. Paul's German church, who last Sunday preached a vigorous sermon on anarchism, has received a letter signed "An Anarchist" stating if he does not retract on the coming Sunday all he said about anarchism he will be a corpse within two weeks.

STORIES OF M'KINLEY.

Memories of the President's Boyhood Days.

A good sized volume might be filled with the many little incidents, humorous, pathetic and otherwise, marking President McKinley's career as boy, lawyer, soldier and statesman that have found their way into print.

Some of the most interesting reminiscences of his earlier days were related, says the Boston Globe, by his beloved mother a few years before her death, and from those it would appear that the future president was a lively and affectionate youngster of the "mild-mannered" description.

"Mother" McKinley said that William was a great hand for marbles, and he was very fond of his bow and arrow. He got so that he was a very good shot with an arrow. The thing he loved best of all was a kite. "It seems to me," said Mrs. McKinley, "I never went into the kitchen without seeing a paste pot or a ball of string waiting to be made into a kite. He never cared much for pets. I don't believe he ever had one. We didn't own a horse, so he never rode or drove. He was always teasing to go barefooted the minute the snow was off the ground. When summer came, he always had a stone bruise or a stubbed toe, and he was as proud as a king to show all the other boys how he stubbed or bruised his foot. Although William had no taste for fishing and rarely if ever attempted the sport, he was very fond of swimming."

In pursuance of her plan of making her boys useful, Mrs. McKinley required them to divide the labors of the house. They burned wood and lots of it, and it had to be sawed and split. It came in lengths four feet long, and William and Abner, being of about the same age, had to prepare it for use. Mrs. McKinley remembers that William was a steady chopper, muscular and willing, but Abner usually had the bigger pile to his credit. However, Abner got other boys to help him, while he directed their work. William, on the contrary, always saved his own wood. The boys had the garden to hoe, chickens to feed and errands to run.

Mr. McKinley's conversion in the Methodist church at Poland, O., is thus related by his old pastor, Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow:

"Young McKinley's admission to the church made such a vivid impression on my mind that I will never forget it. He had been a frequent attendant at the Sunday services and was an earnest listener. On the evening McKinley 'got up' I had been exhorting all my hearers to repent deeply of their sins and seek salvation of their souls.

"After the preaching we had a prayer meeting, and young McKinley arose in his seat. He was about fourteen years old at the time, and a more dramatic figure of an earnest boy I never saw. Standing erect, with bowed head, but looking every one full in the face, he said: 'I am determined to be a Christian. I believe that God is the greatest and best being of the universe, and I am determined to love and serve him. I believe religion is the best thing in all the world, and I am going to seek it with all my heart until I find it.'

"There was nothing affected in the boy's manner, but his quiet, earnest way attracted the attention of everybody in the church. The boy at that time was a student at the Poland Institute, and the stand he took for religion had a great amount of influence with the younger people."

James P. Gardner of Ellerslie, Alleghany county, Md., claims that he was instrumental in securing for President McKinley his first law case. A poor woman of Canton had fallen in a sewer, carelessly left open by city officials, and sustained severe injuries. She was disabled for work and probably too ignorant or too poor to bring suit.

Mr. Gardner, then a resident of Canton, interested himself in the poor woman's behalf and carried the case to Major McKinley, who had just hung out his shingle. The latter worked it up and brought suit against the city. He won, and as a consequence the woman was able to provide herself with a comfortable home and a "rainy day" fund. The only reward Major McKinley got for his services, says Mr. Gardner, was the pleasure which a good man derives from the performance of a good deed.

The plaintiff's counsel had ocularily exposed the malpracticed leg to the jury and ocularily showed the nodes which were the alleged palpable evidences of the want of medical skill when McKinley exclaimed as the plaintiff was restoring the clothing of the limb, "Now let us see your other leg," which, after very excusable objections as to policy from his attorney, was exhibited.

The new exhibit, which proved to have been duly marked with India ink, showed the same nodes that were upon the other leg and proved that, as McKinley wittily remarked, it was Dame Nature who had been guilty of malpractice.

the presidency used to receive scores of requests to make speeches, and many of these were accompanied with offers of money. One day he received a letter from Boston stating that the writer would give him $500 if he would deliver a speech there.

"I do not know why it is," said the then governor of Ohio, "but there is a sort of repugnance in my mind against giving my views on public questions for pay. I may be all wrong about it, but I know it would take all the enthusiasm out of me if I knew that I was going to be paid at the end of a meeting for the remarks I made during it. I have had money offered me very often, but I have never taken it."

"I remember a speech which I made not long ago in debate at one of the big eastern universities on the tariff question. I took the protection side, of course, and a very prominent free trader had the other side. Shortly after I arrived in the city the president of the institution called upon me at my hotel. During the visit he took four one hundred dollar bills out of his pocket and laid them down on the table.

"What is that for?" said I.

"That is for your speech tonight," was the reply.

"But I don't want any money for the speech," I answered. "I did not come here to talk for money, and I cannot take it."

"We would rather have you take it than not," said the president. "We have paid that much to your opponent, and I see no reason why you should not be paid as well as he."

"Well," pursued the governor, "the president continued to insist, and at last I told him that if he was determined upon it he could pay my expenses. It would cost me $50 to fill the engagement, and that was all that I could accept. I asked them to send the money to my home, for, do you know, I do not believe I could have done my best with that money in my pocket."

The last thing Mr. Kinley did on the Pan-American grounds before he was shot was a little act of kindness, says the New York World. Fred Klooner, a programme boy, met the presidential carriage drawn up for a moment for the view of the court of fountains.

"Here's a programme for you, Mr. President," said the boy, eluding the police escort, and, stepping close to the carriage, he handed Mr. McKinley three. The president took them, smiled, reached into his pocket and handed the boy a dollar. The youngster put his hand behind him and took a backward step.

"No, sir; that's a present," he said bravely.

The president smiled again, returned the coin to his pocket, nodded thanks and was whisked away, while the lad stood in the middle of the roadway and watched the carriage until it was out of sight.

Physicians and others who have been in attendance on President McKinley are beginning to repeat incidents and scraps of conversation which throw interesting side lights on the personality of the nation's executive. One of the most touching stories was repeated the other day by a physician who assisted at the first operation in the Pan-American Emergency hospital, says a Buffalo correspondent of the New York Press. The doctor said:

"When we had administered the ether to President McKinley as a preliminary to the first operation and just as he was sinking into unconsciousness, we saw his lips move. Bending over the prostrate form, that we might catch what, alas, might prove to be his last words, we heard, faintly, but distinctly, a part of the Lord's Prayer. 'Thy kingdom come, thy will be done,' were the last words of President McKinley as he passed into that vale from which, as none knew better than he, he might never emerge."

Whenever he could the president has cracked a joke in his sickroom. The other morning Miss Mohr, one of the nurses, counted the president's pulse. First gazing at the watch in her hand and then looking up at her quizzically, the president said:

Kisses For Punctual Pupils.
Miss Julia Wilson, a schoolteacher in White county, has introduced a new method by which to prevent tardiness among her pupils, says a dispatch from Dublin, Ind., to the Chicago Record-Herald. She announced before the school that she would kiss the first arrival every morning. Miss Wilson is a handsome lass of 18 summers, and the boys declare she is "sweet as a peach." The first morning after her announcement as early as 5 o'clock a number of the eldest schoolboys were roosting on the fence awaiting their pretty schoolteacher's arrival. At 8 o'clock the entire school was there. The township trustees also put in an appearance. Miss Wilson kept her promise.

Fall's Approach.
The leaves are turning into gold; They always do the same; It is a little way they have. A sort of green gold game. The hazy twilight brings a moon That takes up half the sky And makes a hungry fellow think Of future pumpkin pie.

The elder prom gets busy now; It does not stop nor lag. And country folks again debate, "Does Cider Cause a Jag?" The price of coal goes up a notch; The price of ice comes down; The folks who spend their coin abroad Are hunting now in town.

And, oh, the rah-rah boy permits His hair to grow quite long And bursts the air with college yells Or tunes his college song. The theaters are open, and New ragtime songs are afloat; These symptoms make it very plain; We know that it is fall.

—Baltimore American.

Cubans Feel the Assassination of President McKinley Deeply.
Tampa, Fla., Sept. 18.—Governor General Wood arrived here during the afternoon from Havana en route to Washington. General Wood said that he had never seen such universal mourning as was shown in Cuba for the death of Mr. McKinley and that its extent and manifest sincerity, demonstrating how deeply the Cubans felt, was surprising. General Wood stated that important business with the secretary of war brought him to the states and that he would probably return to Havana in about a week.

BURGLARS GET CASH.

Five Thousand in Currency and Bonds Are Taken.

Hudson, Wis., Sept. 18.—The Bank of Hammond was broken into during the night and looted by burglars. Several thousand dollars in currency and securities, including city of River Falls bonds, were taken. The bank officials refuse to give out any particulars at this time. It is estimated that the cash taken amounts to $5,000 and that the bonds are to an equal amount.

In Memory of President McKinley.

London, Sept. 18.—The ecumenical Methodist conference closed its sessions with a memorial service in honor of the late President McKinley. The platform was draped in black and white and British and American flags were entwined about the pulpit. The organ played a dead march, impressive addresses were made and "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. Ambassador Choate was among those present.

Found Their Children Burned.

Spooner, Wis., Sept. 18.—Word comes from Orange postoffice, 30 miles northeast, that Robert Beasle and his wife returned Sunday night and found their home burned, with the bodies of their three children, a girl of 16, and two boys of 11 and 4. There is a suspicion of criminal assault and burned bodies to cover the crime.

Anarchist Threatens a Preacher.

Piqua, O., Sept. 18.—Rev. Frederick Knapp, pastor of St. Paul's German church, who last Sunday preached a vigorous sermon on anarchism, has received a letter signed "An Anarchist" stating if he does not retract on the coming Sunday all he said about anarchism he will be a corpse within two weeks.

STORIES OF M'KINLEY.

Memories of the President's Boyhood Days.

A good sized volume might be filled with the many little incidents, humorous, pathetic and otherwise, marking President McKinley's career as boy, lawyer, soldier and statesman that have found their way into print.

Some of the most interesting reminiscences of his earlier days were related, says the Boston Globe, by his beloved mother a few years before her death, and from those it would appear that the future president was a lively and affectionate youngster of the "mild-ding-dong" description.

"Mother" McKinley said that William was a great hand for marbles, and he was very fond of his bow and arrow. He got so that he was a very good shot with an arrow. The thing he loved best of all was a kite. "It seems to me," said Mrs. McKinley, "I never went into the kitchen without seeing a paste pot or a ball of string waiting to be made into a kite. He never cared much for pets. I don't believe he ever had one. We didn't own a horse, so he never rode or drove. He was always teasing to go barefooted the minute the snow was off the ground. When summer came, he always had a stone bruise or a stubbed toe, and he was as proud as a king to show all the other boys how he stubbed or bruised his foot. Although William had no taste for fishing and rarely if ever attempted the sport, he was very fond of swimming."

In pursuance of her plan of making her boys useful, Mrs. McKinley required them to divide the labors of the house. They burned wood and lots of it, and it had to be sawed and split. It came in lengths four feet long, and William and Abner, being of about the same age, had to prepare it for use. Mrs. McKinley remembers that William was a steady chopper, muscular and willing, but Abner usually had the bigger pile to his credit. However, Abner got other boys to help him, while he directed their work. William, on the contrary, always sawed his own wood. The boys had the garden to hoe, chickens to feed and errands to run.

Mr. McKinley's conversion in the Methodist church at Poland, O., is thus related by his old pastor, Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow:

"Young McKinley's admission to the church made such a vivid impression on my mind that I will never forget it. He had been a frequent attendant at the Sunday services and was an earnest listener. On the evening McKinley 'got up' I had been exhorting all my hearers to repent deeply of their sins and seek salvation of their souls.

"After the preaching we had a prayer meeting, and young McKinley arose in his seat. He was about fourteen years old at the time, and a more dramatic figure of an earnest boy I never saw. Standing erect, with bowed head, but looking every one full in the face, he said: 'I am determined to be a Christian. I believe that God is the greatest and best being of the universe, and I am determined to love and serve him. I believe religion is the best thing in all the world, and I am going to seek it with all my heart until I find it.'

"There was nothing affected in the boy's manner, but his quiet, earnest way attracted the attention of everybody in the church. The boy at that time was a student at the Poland Institute, and the stand he took for religion had a great amount of influence with the younger people."

James P. Gardner of Ellerslie, Alleghany county, Md., claims that he was instrumental in securing for President McKinley his first law case. A poor woman of Canton had fallen in a sewer, carelessly left open by city officials, and sustained severe injuries. She was disabled for work and probably too ignorant or too poor to bring suit.

Mr. Gardner, then a resident of Canton, interested himself in the poor woman's behalf and carried the case to Major McKinley, who had just hung out his shingle. The latter worked it up and brought suit against the city. He won, and as a consequence the woman was able to provide herself with a comfortable home and a "rainy day" fund. The only reward Major McKinley got for his services, says Mr. Gardner, was the pleasure which a good man derives from the performance of a good deed.

Young McKinley was once defending a medical client sued for alleged malpractice in setting a broken leg. It was suspected, without means of proof being provided, that the claim was what in the legal slang of corporation damage suits is called a "fake snap." The plaintiff's counsel had orally exposed the malpracticed leg to the jury and orally showed the nodes which were the alleged palpable evidences of the want of medical skill when McKinley exclaimed as the plaintiff was restoring the clothing of the limb, "Now let us see your other leg," which, after very excusable objections as to policy from his attorney, was exhibited.

The new exhibit, which proved to have been duly marked with India ink, showed the same nodes that were upon the other leg and proved that, as McKinley wittily remarked, it was Dame Nature who had been guilty of malpractice.

the presidency used to receive scores of requests to make speeches, and many of these were accompanied with offers of money. One day he received a letter from Boston stating that the writer would give him $500 if he would deliver a speech there.

"I do not know why it is," said the then governor of Ohio, "but there is a sort of repugnance in my mind against giving my views on public questions for pay. I may be all wrong about it, but I know it would take all the enthusiasm out of me if I knew that I was going to be paid at the end of a meeting for the remarks I made during it. I have had money offered me very often, but I have never taken it."

"I remember a speech which I made not long ago in debate at one of the big eastern universities on the tariff question. I took the protection side, of course, and a very prominent free trader had the other side. Shortly after I arrived in the city the president of the institution called upon me at my hotel. During the visit he took four one hundred dollar bills out of his pocket and laid them down on the table.

"What is that for?" said I.

"That is for your speech tonight," was the reply.

"But I don't want any money for the speech," I answered. "I did not come here to talk for money, and I cannot take it."

"We would rather have you take it than not," said the president. "We have paid that much to your opponent, and I see no reason why you should not be paid as well as he."

"Well," pursued the governor, "the president continued to insist, and at last I told him that if he was determined upon it he could pay my expenses. It would cost me $50 to fill the engagement, and that was all that I could accept. I asked them to send the money to my home, for, do you know, I do not believe I could have done my best with that money in my pocket."

The last thing Mr. Kinley did on the Pan-American grounds before he was shot was a little act of kindness, says the New York World. Fred Kloontammer, a programme boy, met the presidential carriage drawn up for a moment for the view of the court of fountains.

"Here's a programme for you, Mr. President," said the boy, eluding the police escort, and, stepping close to the carriage, he handed Mr. McKinley three. The president took them, smiled, reached into his pocket and handed the boy a dollar. The youngster put his hand behind him and took a backward step.

"No, sir; that's a present," he said bravely.

The president smiled again, returned the coin to his pocket, nodded thanks and was whisked away, while the lad stood in the middle of the roadway and watched the carriage until it was out of sight.

Physicians and others who have been in attendance on President McKinley are beginning to repeat incidents and scraps of conversation which throw interesting side lights on the personality of the nation's executive. One of the most touching stories was repeated the other day by a physician who assisted at the first operation in the Pan-American Emergency hospital, says a Buffalo correspondent of the New York Press. The doctor said:

"When we had administered the ether to President McKinley as a preliminary to the first operation and just as he was sinking into unconsciousness, we saw his lips move. Bending over the prostrate form, that we might catch what, alas, might prove to be his last words, we heard, faintly, but distinctly, a part of the Lord's Prayer. 'Thy kingdom come, thy will be done,' were the last words of President McKinley as he passed into that vale from which, as none knew better than he, he might never emerge."

Whenever he could the president has cracked a joke in his sickroom. The other morning Miss Mohn, one of the nurses, counted the president's pulse. First gazing at the watch in her hand and then looking up at her quizzically, the president said:

Kisses For Punctual Pupils.

Miss Julia Wilson, a schoolteacher in White county, has introduced a new method by which to prompt tardiness among her pupils, says a dispatch from Dublin, Ind., to the Chicago Record-Herald. She announced before the school that she would kiss the first arrival every morning. Miss Wilson is a handsome lass of 18 summers, and the boys declare she is "sweet as a peach." The first morning after her announcement as early as 5 o'clock a number of the eldest schoolboys were roosting on the fence awaiting their pretty schoolteacher's arrival. At 8 o'clock the entire school was there. The township trustees also put in an appearance. Miss Wilson kept her promise.

Fall's Approach.

The leaves are turning to gold; They always do the same; It is a little way they have, A sort of green goods game. The hazy twilight brings a moon That takes up half the sky And makes a hungry fellow think Of future pumpkin pie.

The older press gets busy now; It does not stop nor lag, And country folk again debate, "Does Older Cows a Jag?" The price of coal goes up a notch; The price of ice comes down; The folks who spend their coin abroad Are hustling now in town.

And, oh, the rab-rah boy permits His hair to grow quite long And boasts the air with college yell Or tunes his college song. The theaters are open, and New routines stage us equal; These symptoms mark it very plain; We know that it is fall.

MOORING UNIVERSAL.

Cubans Feel the Assassination of President McKinley Deeply.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 18.—Governor General Wood arrived here during the afternoon from Havana en route to Washington. General Wood said that he had never seen such universal mourning as was shown in Cuba for the death of Mr. McKinley and that its extent and manifest sincerity, demonstrating how deeply the Cubans felt, was surprising. General Wood stated that important business with the secretary of war brought him to the states and that he would probably return to Havana in about a week.

BURGLARS GET CASH.

Hudson, Wis., Sept. 18.—The Bank of Hammond was broken into during the night and looted by burglars. Several thousand dollars in currency and securities, including city of River Falls bonds, were taken. The bank officials refuse to give out any particulars at this time. It is estimated that the cash taken amounts to $5,000 and that the bonds are to an equal amount.

In Memory of President McKinley.

London, Sept. 18.—The ecumenical Methodist conference closed its sessions with a memorial service in honor of the late President McKinley. The platform was draped in black and white and British and American flags were entwined about the pulpit. The organ played a dead march, impressive addresses were made and "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung. Ambassador Choate was among those present.

Found Their Children Burned.

Spooner, Wis., Sept. 18.—Word comes from Orange postoffice, 30 miles northeast, that Robert Beale and his wife returned Sunday night and found their home burned, with the bodies of their three children, a girl of 16, and two boys of 11 and 4. There is a suspicion of criminal assault and burned bodies to cover the crime.

Anarchist Threatens a Preacher.

Piqua, O., Sept. 18.—Rev. Frederick Knapp, pastor of St. Paul's German church, who last Sunday preached a vigorous sermon on anarchism, has received a letter signed "An Anarchist" stating if he does not retract on the coming Sunday all he said about anarchism he will be a corpse within two weeks.

Had Used Burnt Cork.

Wichita, Kan., Sept. 18.—A man who assaulted Mrs. Waddell Monday night was caught during the day by the bloodhounds and proved to be a white man blacked with burnt cork, and not a negro.
